Intentions...

What are they?

We have all at this point come to know about intention, we have been told to set them, to honor them, to prepare them. And I have over the years made this a foundational part of my own formula.

One of the things I hear from women a lot is

How do I set my intention?*

And

How do I know if I am setting the right intention, the one that will move me closer to my desired results in life?*

Whenever I set out to “accomplish” something I am always focused on Being (Indie) Enjoying (Frenchie) and Doing (New Yorker), but I do not even start the process until I have done 1 simple step.

That is what we are going to be covering in this class.

What is the difference between an intention and an elegant intention?*

Why don't we just SET intentions? (This one actually threw me for a loop myself)*

What do we do then and how can we ensure if it will be effective and supportive to our process?*

Answer the below questions, without much thought. Just go into that place of knowing (your Indie) and respond from where you are now.

My definition of intention is-

I currently use intention in my life in the following way(s)

I feel I honor and include intention in my life in a way that serves me? Yes or No,Why?

Why do I not use intention as often as I should?

The difference between an intention and Elegant Intention is?

What is the importance of an intention?

Why do I need to stop just “setting” intentions?

How will intentions allow me to become more of who I am here to become?

What is the one thing I can do to start moving towards intention and allow it to support me in the easiest most elegant way?

How can I ensure that the intention I am activating is the right intention?

My intention is:

I will allow intention to support me by:

Journal Exercise

What am I required to release to allow intention to become more of a living force in my life?

How is my new understanding of intention (and making sure they are elegant) going to serve me in every part of my life moving forward?
